

Which angel am I?

- This archangel is the angel that takes souls at death. He releases people's souls and returns them to Allah when their life is up. It is important to remember that all Angels are obediently follow Allah, and Allah created death. Therefore, despite everything seeing this Angel negatively, he is just doing his duty.
- This archangel will blow the trumpet twice. On the first blow, Doomsday (judgement day) will occur. On the second blow, the resurrection will occur. The prophet Muhammad said that this angel is 'waiting the order of blowing while He grasps the trumpet' hence all images of him will portray him with a trumpet at his mouth.
- These are two terrifying angels who will question each person after their death, testing their faith. They will ask the dead questions on issues relating to God and their beliefs.
- These angels sit, one on each shoulder. The one on the right shoulder records a person's good deeds. The one on the left shoulder records their evil deeds. This book of a person's deeds will be read from the book on the last day.
- This angel had the duty of revealing the Qur'an to Muhammad. He told Muhammad to 'recite' when he was meditating in a cave in Mount Hira. These revelations occurred for 23 years. This angel is the angel who brings messages to God's chosen ones. Another example of his message was the revelation to Maryam that she will have an immaculate conception and this angel was also protecting Ibrahim from the fire to stop him being getting burned.
- This archangel is responsible for keeping the devil out of heaven and protecting faithful worshippers. He was one of the first angels (along with Jibril) to bow down to Adam. He brings material food for the body and spiritual food for the soul to keep us healthy and good. He is also responsible for sending rainfall to the earth to water the land which is needed for our survival.

Which angel am I?

- This archangel is the angel that takes souls at death. He releases people's souls and returns them to Allah when their life is up. It is important to remember that all Angels are obediently follow Allah, and Allah created death. Therefore, despite everything seeing this Angel negatively, he is just doing his duty.
- This archangel will blow the trumpet twice. On the first blow, Doomsday (judgement day) will occur. On the second blow, the resurrection will occur. The prophet Muhammad said that this angel is 'waiting the order of blowing while He grasps the trumpet' hence all images of him will portray him with a trumpet at his mouth.
- These are two terrifying angels who will question each person after their death, testing their faith. They will ask the dead questions on issues relating to God and their beliefs.
- These angels sit, one on each shoulder. The one on the right shoulder records a person's good deeds. The one on the left shoulder records their evil deeds. This book of a person's deeds will be read from the book on the last day.
- This angel had the duty of revealing the Qur'an to Muhammad. He told Muhammad to 'recite' when he was meditating in a cave in Mount Hira. These revelations occurred for 23 years. This angel is the angel who brings messages to God's chosen ones. Another example of his message was the revelation to Maryam that she will have an immaculate conception and this angel was also protecting Ibrahim from the fire to stop him being getting burned.
- This archangel is responsible for keeping the devil out of heaven and protecting faithful worshippers. He was one of the first angels (along with Jibril) to bow down to Adam. He brings material food for the body and spiritual food for the soul to keep us healthy and good. He is also responsible for sending rainfall to the earth to water the land which is needed for our survival.